Daylight Savings Time—Changes for 2007

In August of 2005 the United States Congress passed the Energy Policy Act, which changes the dates of both the start and end of daylight saving time (DST). When this law goes into effect in 2007, DST will start three weeks earlier (2:00 A.M. on the second Sunday in March) and will end one week later (2:00 A.M. on the first Sunday in November) than what had traditionally occurred.

The following article summarizes the updates and tools that Microsoft is developing for its customers to address the DST change.

Microsoft Office Online

The Crabby Office Lady

There are certain civilized ways of acting and treating each other that years of evolution have encouraged us to realize. Judging by the amount of mail I've received, some of us have forgotten our workplace manners. more

Community Spotlight

Schoolhouse Supplies collects new and used supplies from businesses and individuals in our community and uses these items to stock a unique store for Portland Public School teachers - where everything is free! Our program touches the lives of thousands of children in need and helps teachers create an exceptional learning environment.

Security Watch

Microsoft issued two security updates last week, one of them addressing critical vulnerabilities in Microsoft Office. Apple had their own batch of updates for critical vulnerabilities affecting the Mail program and Safari web browser, among others. And Adobe announced their own critical flaws in their Flash products. In other security news, new anti-root kit software is emerging. more
